[English text unavailable]

Contents

[English text unavailable] 2
[English text unavailable] 2
[English text unavailable] 4

[English text unavailable]

COL-101033

Crater, Sanctuary

Moldir: We've reached the target area. The sanctuary is directly below us.

Ulrich: This will be a race against the clock.

Before the helicopter can even stabilize, Moldir leaps out, guiding Ulrich from the cabin.

Ulrich: Now's the time. Give me a hand with the record player while I generate the magnetic field.

Ulrich: Damn it! The field is totally unstable. I can't accurately calibrate the record player under these conditions.

Ulrich: The asymmetrical nuclide R in the air is far denser than anything we've ever had in the lab.

Ulrich: There are too many variables. There's no way to be sure that "Regulus" will function as expected.

The ferrofluid fractures into scattered dots, then coalesces.

Ulrich: Calm down, Ulrich. First, get the latest asymmetrical nuclide R reading and make the necessary adjustments. Then we'll deal with the signal interference. If I can find the pattern of the geomagnetic change—

Ulrich: For Flux's sake! The device is frozen. Somebody help me out here.

Another quake in ice and earth all but topples Ulrich. Above, Olitiau's screech pierces the air.

Moldir: Be careful, Ulrich.

Moldir steadies Ulrich just in time.

Moldir: Leave the monitoring device to me. I can fix it. Buddy, keep those creatures off of us.

Buddy Fairchild: Ain't gotta tell me twice. But, Lieutenant, that thing don't look like no Olitiau I ever seen.

A great boney creature spreads its wings and dives toward them, followed by a swarm of Olitiaus, eager to feast.

Buddy Fairchild: Heavens to Betsy! Now this'll be a tough nut to crack.

Moldir: Prepare to engage. Hold them off while Ulrich works on the record. There is no room for error.

[English text unavailable]

COL-101037

Mountainside, Sanctuary

Guard: pant I knew this wouldn't exactly be a Sunday stroll. Urgh!

The guard pushes another obstructing boulder aside with effort.

Guard: But I didn't think we'd literally be carving our own trail through the wilderness.

Guard: Boss, at this rate, the world'll be in absolute bedlam by the time we reach the top.

Ulrich: Hold on.

Ulrich: Let me check the map Lieutenant gave me.

Guard: Lieutenant Moldir ... As grateful as I am that she set us free—which I absolutely am—I have to say, this isn't exactly the type of freedom I imagined.

There's a rustling sound.

Guard: Who's there?

The guard fumbles for her gun, only to smash her elbow against the very boulder she just moved.

Guard: Tch! Ouch!

Several critter-like creatures burst forth from the snow.

Penguins: Gaaahh!

Ulrich: Penguins? Here?

The penguins charge toward the climbers, their beaks already pecking at the coats.

Guard: Hey! Give that grenade back!

Guard: Uhh. "No interference," right, boss? I mean, you're not going to make me fight a penguin, are you? Look at their little faces!

???: All members of the Sentinel Unit Antarctic Advance Party, attention!

Ulrich: ...?

The penguins wobble into a perfectly aligned row, like well-trained circus performers. Or perhaps even soldiers.

???: Alrighty, let's see what we got here. Rookie guard, check.

???: Awakened researcher with a fish tank for a head, check.

Buddy Fairchild: Mr. Ulrich! Allow me to apologize for the shock my jits have given ya.

Buddy Fairchild: They're jumpier 'n a spring cricket at the moment. Lot of 'em just lost some dear friends o' theirs after gettin' back from Florida—brutal, really.

The little rodent standing before Ulrich snaps off a salute.

Ulrich: Penguins in Florida?

Guard: And a squirrel in Antarctica?

Buddy Fairchild: Not just any squirrel—yer lookin' at a sergeant, missy! Sergeant Buddy Fairchild, reportin' for duty!

Buddy Fairchild: We been waitin' here on account o' the lieutenant's order.

Buddy Fairchild: I been tasked with bein' yer Official Antarctic guide, and it's a good thing too, 'cause ya sure ain't gon' find no one else to guide ya 'round these parts.

Guard: The lieutenant ... You mean Moldir?

Buddy Fairchild: Sure as shootin'. Her message came in earlier today—told me yer fixin' to scale that there mountain and gave me the job o' gettin' ya there.

Penguins: Ga-gah!

In unison, the entire penguin squad delivers a textbook Zeno salute.

Guard: Ah, Moldir, I could kiss you!

Ulrich: So, em, Sergeant Fairchild, you and these, uh, troops, are under Moldir's command?

Ulrich struggles to process the surreal scenario.

Buddy Fairchild: Let's skip the pleasantries, shall we? The lieutenant's orders were clear as the day is long.

Buddy Fairchild: If ya really wanna help yer friends and save the world, then we better get yer bee-hinds up that mountain quicker 'n a cat on a hot tin roof and get that record playin'.

Buddy Fairchild: Now let's get movin' 'fore the Manus get their ritual goin'!

Guard: "Save the world"? I had no idea she thought so highly of us.

Buddy Fairchild clasps his hands behind his back, tapping the ground with his feet.

Buddy Fairchild: Hmm. Now, let's see here.

Circling Ulrich with paws still firmly behind his back, Buddy Fairchild sizes him up with a critical eye.

Buddy Fairchild: Mountain ain't no Everest, but it's sure as a storm in July to be a tough climb for ya'll big-n-tall'uns.

Buddy Fairchild: Well, can't never could. Buckle up, folks! I don't wanna see no bodies tumblin' down the mountain, ya hear?

[English text unavailable]

COL-101039

Mountainside, Sanctuary

Guard: pant I knew this wouldn't exactly be a Sunday stroll. Urgh!

The guard pushes another obstructing boulder aside with effort.

Guard: But I didn't think we'd literally be carving our own trail through the wilderness.

Guard: Boss, at this rate, the world'll be in absolute bedlam by the time we reach the top.

Ulrich: Hold on.

Ulrich: Let me check the map Lieutenant gave me.

Guard: Lieutenant Moldir ... As grateful as I am that she set us free—which I absolutely am—I have to say, this isn't exactly the type of freedom I imagined.

There's a rustling sound.

Guard: Who's there?

The guard fumbles for her gun, only to smash her elbow against the very boulder she just moved.

Guard: Tch! Ouch!

Several critter-like creatures burst forth from the snow.

Penguins: Gaaahh!

Penguins: ...

Guard: ...

Ulrich: ...

Ulrich: Penguins? Here?

The penguins charge toward the climbers, their beaks already pecking at the coats.

Guard: Hey! Give that grenade back!

Guard: Uhh. "No interference," right, boss? I mean, you're not going to make me fight a penguin, are you? Look at their little faces!

???: All members of the Sentinel Unit Antarctic Advance Party, attention!

Ulrich: ...?

The penguins wobble into a perfectly aligned row, like well-trained circus performers. Or perhaps even soldiers.

???: Alrighty, let's see what we got here. Rookie guard, check.

???: Awakened researcher with a fish tank for a head, check.

Buddy Fairchild: Mr. Ulrich! Allow me to apologize for the shock my jits have given ya.

Buddy Fairchild: They're jumpier 'n a spring cricket at the moment. Lot of 'em just lost some dear friends o' theirs after gettin' back from Florida—brutal, really.

The little rodent standing before Ulrich snaps off a salute.

Ulrich: Penguins in Florida?

Guard: And a squirrel in Antarctica?

Buddy Fairchild: Not just any squirrel—yer lookin' at a sergeant, missy! Sergeant Buddy Fairchild, reportin' for duty!

Buddy Fairchild: We been waitin' here on account o' the lieutenant's order.

Buddy Fairchild: I been tasked with bein' yer Official Antarctic guide, and it's a good thing too, 'cause ya sure ain't gon' find no one else to guide ya 'round these parts.

Guard: The lieutenant ... You mean Moldir?

Buddy Fairchild: Sure as shootin'. Her message came in earlier today—told me yer fixin' to scale that there mountain and gave me the job o' gettin' ya there.

Penguins: Ga-gah!

In unison, the entire penguin squad delivers a textbook Zeno salute.

Guard: Ah, Moldir, I could kiss you!

Ulrich: So, em, Sergeant Fairchild, you and these, uh, troops, are under Moldir's command?

Ulrich struggles to process the surreal scenario.

Buddy Fairchild: Let's skip the pleasantries, shall we? The lieutenant's orders were clear as the day is long.

Buddy Fairchild: If ya really wanna help yer friends and save the world, then we better get yer bee-hinds up that mountain quicker 'n a cat on a hot tin roof and get that record playin'.

Buddy Fairchild: Now let's get movin' 'fore the Manus get their ritual goin'!

Guard: "Save the world"? I had no idea she thought so highly of us.

Buddy Fairchild clasps his hands behind his back, tapping the ground with his feet.

Buddy Fairchild: Hmm. Now, let's see here.

Circling Ulrich with paws still firmly behind his back, Buddy Fairchild sizes him up with a critical eye.

Buddy Fairchild: Mountain ain't no Everest, but it's sure as a storm in July to be a tough climb for ya'll big-n-tall'uns.

Buddy Fairchild: Well, can't never could. Buckle up, folks! I don't wanna see no bodies tumblin' down the mountain, ya hear?